Forecast for Friday 14 Jun 2024

Weather: Scattered showers through the early hours with winds easing down somewhat. Still quite blustery on Friday but a brighter day with sunny intervals and showers. The showers are most likely during the afternoon when heavy downpours are possible, perhaps with local hail and thunder.

Chance of cloud-free hill tops above 600m: 40% becoming 80%

Low cloud and visibility: Periods of cloud above 450-600m during the morning, becoming patchy above 800m by the afternoon. Generally very good visibility with excellent air clarity and distant views of faraway landmarks and hills, however temporarily falling to just a few kilometres during the showers (less in thundery showers) and locally just a few hundred metres in any hill fog.

Meteorologist's View

Winds may gust 5-10 mph higher than the values in the table above in and around any heavier showers and especially in the vicinity of any thunderstorms. Thunderstorms may develop without much warning. UV levels will become high during any sunny periods, so it's advised to wear sun protection.

Forecast for Saturday 15 Jun 2024

Weather: Another showery day is in store with the chance of more general periods of rain at times. Some of the showers may be heavy but a few drier periods are likely too. Often cloudy skies though with limited amounts of sunshine. A windier day than on Friday.

Maximum wind: Westerly or southwesterly 35 mph gusting 45 mph.

Chance of cloud-free hill tops above 600m: 40-60%.

Low cloud and visibility: Occasional periods of cloud above 700m with patches above 550-600m at times, perhaps persistent during any prolonged periods of rain. Often good visibility at lower levels although widely poor or very poor on the summits in the cloud. Becoming poor in showers and periods of rain.

Temperature: Valleys: Plus 6 Celsius rising to plus 17 Celsius.
At 600m: Plus 9 Celsius.
Freezing level: Above the summits.
